At First Sight

Being the Story of a Gotham Girl Who Joined the "Kevuzah" at Merhavia

BY ELIAS M. EPSTEIN

Special Jerusalem Correspondent to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency

" . . . and as you tell me there is a demand for first-class stenographers in Palestine, I have no doubt I shall soon find a suitable post."

Hard upon the letter to her friend came the writer herself. She had now been a week in the land of Israel, which she spent in Jerusalem where she found an excellent Government position awaiting her. She was to begin on the first of next month, and meanwhile was seeing the sights. She was pleased with everything. Jerusalem was really quite modern. Automobiles and public motor-busses conveyed you from end to end of the city; the shops had everything you wanted; milliners and dressmakers (with taste) abounded; there were dances and concerts and tea gardens; even accommodation with bathroom could be found. Her fear of being "buried alive" in old Jerusalem vanished, and after a ball given by an English Club she confessed she was having a giddy time.

Now before settling down to work she proposed to visit one or two colonies, and I suggested the new colonies in the "Emek." The journey north, through the hills of Judaea and Samaria was pleasant but did not excite her. She was not impressed by the Arab town of Nablus or the primitive village of Jenin, and she asked whether the Jewish settlements were of the same type. I tried to explain what the colonies, the life of the farm, the tilling of the soil, meant to us as a people; I dwelt on the ideal of the Chaluzim's return to the land; I spoke of how they were free and how through them our nation was finding its freedom. But my words found no listener in the New York girl. I was talking to one who did not understand. When she began to hum a fox-trot tune I gave up my explanations. In silence the car pushed ahead towards the valley of Jezreel.

It was in Afuleh that the wonderful thing happened. The chauffeur pulled up for benzine or water, and I, to whom the scene was familiar, did not trouble to leave the car. The small railway station, the shanty opposite where you could have Arabic coffee or leave a scythe or a bag of fruit to be called for; heaps of oranges gleaming in the bright sun and very cheap; in the fields beyond Jewish haymakers singing as they worked.

There was a rattle of carr and horses, and a voice hailed me. Reins in hand, standing up in his rude wagon, the owner of the voice looked the picture of health. Bronzed face, broad chest and strong arms; his shirt open and the shirt sleeves rolled up to the elbows showing his hard muscles; farmer's breeches and leggings; and a smile that showed content and happiness. He looked like the figure in the Jewish National Fund's Golden Book Certificate. He had just brought in the daily supply of milk from Merhavia, for Afuleh is the station for that "kevuzah," and he was taking back supplies. We engaged in conversation. He gave me news of the farm (they had killed a cow the previous day, and that was an event in Merhavia), and I told him of the tittle-tattle of politics as it was understood in Jerusalem. I did not notice that the girl had approached us.

"Won't you introduce me?" she whispered.

"Certainly—but you don't speak Hebrew, do you?" However, I offered to interpret.

She asked the young farmer ever so many questions and he was amused at her ignorance of the life in the colonies, but he seemed very keen on interesting her.

"The kevuzah is a co-operative group," he explained. "We don't own the land. It belongs to the Jewish people, and it is leased to us by the Jewish National Fund. We are forty-six souls all told. Some look after the dairy, others attend to the crops and the fruit plantations. Those eucalyptus trees alongside the railway line were planted by us."

"And have you any girls, too, among you?" she asked.

"Of course! What farm is complete without girls?" he answered.

He had not meant it as a compliment—it was a plain statement of fact—but she blushed at his straightforward glance and frank smile.

"Why not pay us a visit?" he asked.

I had given my assent before she had framed in words the question in her eyes. We returned to our car and he whipped up his horses.

"Isn't he just splendid?" she said, and then I noticed the wonderful change. Her eyes were sparkling with a new interest, the languid gaze had gone, there was a fresh colour in her cheeks, which even the powder could not hide; she was eager now, no longer placidly content; she wanted to know if she could work on the farm.

"But I thought you were so fond of city life," I said.

"I did not realize what a Jewish farmer looked like," she answered. "It must be lovely to live in the country with our own people. I'm going to join that 'kevuzah.'"

Gently I explained to her that some experience was first necessary. It would be best to join the Agricultural Training Farm for Girls at Nahalal, and after a year or so to ask permission to enter a Kevuzah.

"But it must be Merhavia," she answered, and she looked at me with such assurance that I marvelled at her.

But when we were seated in the common dining-room in Merhavia, tasting the products of the farm, and he volunteered to train her as his assistant in the dairy, I ceased to marvel. Love at first sight—explains many things.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS SOCIETIES AND THE JEWS

Vienna (J.T.A.).—The conference of the Federation of the League of Nations Societies was concluded here on Wednesday, June 27.

The J.T.A. representative learns that the secretariat has received a memorandum from the Committee of Jewish Delegations in Paris protesting against the numerus clausus project in Poland. The question was not raised, however, publicly at the conference, but has been submitted to the General Council for consideration. No Jewish question at all has been touched upon at the conference owing to the fact that there was no Jewish body represented.

The conference had also on its agenda the question of minority rights. From its inception the Federation has devoted itself to the minorities question. It has set up a special commission to investigate conditions in the various countries in relation to the question, and a number of resolutions affecting it have been adopted at previous conferences, in consequence of which vigorous protests have been made by the representatives of the Federation in Poland, Roumania, Czecho-Slovakia and Jugo-Slavia.

The special commission for minority affairs has continued its work during the past year. At one meeting held in February at Basle, a special sub-commission was appointed to consider the question of the establishment of a permanent consultative bureau for minorities, the foundation of a minorities commission at the Permanent International Tribunal, the recognition under certain conditions of the legal rights of minorities, and the representation of the minorities in the League of Nations, and especially on the league secretariat.

Prof. T. Ruyssen, the General Secretary of the Federation of the League of Nations Societies, is known to be extremely sympathetic to the cause of the minority nationalities, and he has taken great interest in the position of the Jews in particular. During his recent visits to Latvia, Esthonia, Poland and Lithuania, he made use of the opportunity to acquaint himself with the conditions under which the Jewish populations of those countries are living, and he came into intimate contact with the Jewish representatives in those countries.

The Committee of Jewish Delegations in Paris is in constant close touch with Prof. Ruyssen, and not long ago Mr. M. Aleinikoff, representative of the committee, paid a visit to him in Brussels to discuss matters affecting Jewish minority rights.

New York (J.T.A.)—Dr. Leo Motzkin, member of the World Executive of the Zionist Organization; and Secretary of the Committee of Jewish Delegations, returned to Paris today after spending a few months in the United States and Canada in the interests of Jewish rights in European countries. Dr. Motzkin also consulted a number of leading individuals and organizations with regard to continued relief for distressed Jewish communities abroad. He was entertained yesterday at a luncheon tendered him by Nathan Straus.

Dr. Joseph Krimsky, a former member of the American Zionist Medical Unit, sailed on the Berengaria today, on his way to Jerusalem. Dr. Krimsky represents the American Jewish Physicians' Committee and has been delegated to take over the property on Mount Scopus to be used as the micro-biological department of the medical department of the Hebrew University. Dr. Krimsky will also make arrangements for the opening of the x-ray department.

SAYS CATHOLICS WILL ALSO OPPOSE FORD

New York (J.T.A.)—That Henry Ford in a race for presidency would have to count on the opposition of Catholics as well as of the Jews, is the opinion of David Lawrence, head of the Consolidated Press Service, and regarded as one of the best posted newspaper correspondents in America.

Mr. Lawrence declares that Ford's campaign against the Jews is in conformity with the principles of the Ku Klux Klan, and whether the Klan indorsed him or not, he would be given the Klan label by his opponents. Under these circumstances large numbers of Catholics would be inclined to oppose any man even slightly favoured by the Klan.

Lawrence in his article arrives at the conclusion that Ford stands no chance with either of the two major parties, but that running as a third party candidate he might get enough electoral votes to throw the election into the House of Representatives.

HERZL ORDERED FIRST ARABIC TYPEWRITER IN THE WORLD

New York (J.T.A.)—A chapter of Dr. Theodor Herzl's memories, just published, reveals that the great Zionist leader was first to have an Arabic typewriter. He ordered it made in America in the early nineties.

Dr. Herzl presented it as a memento of his esteem to the then Sultan of Turkey, Abdul Hamid.

FIRST JEWISH CHAMPIONSHIP

The Beth Jacob Doves won the junior central section of the church league by defeating the Ascension Cotas to the score of 10-9. The game was very evenly contested with the Doves having an edge on the fielding and hitting.

At the end of the sixth, both teams were tie with six runs each. Neither team scored in the seventh. In the eighth, the Doves scored four on a walk to Rabinowitz, his fourth of the game. A hit by Sutton and consecutive hits by Brick, Barnett and Liebovitz. This ended the scoring for the Doves.

In the ninth the Ascension scored three without a man being out, but with two on base. Silver made a nice catch for the second out and Rabinowitz caught a foul tip to end of game.

Altogether the team played wonderful ball for their first year in this league. The game was viewed by the biggest crowd of the season, who saw the closest game played in the church to date.

It is hoped that this championship will bring home to the people of Hamilton the value of Jewish athletics, which may in time lead a Y.M.H.A. in the city. The section winners will now have to play off for the district championship, the Doves promising to go through without a loss.

RATHENAU LIBELER WITHDRAWS CHARGE

Berlin (J.T.A.):—Captain Mueller von Heusen, publisher of the notorious "Protocols," has consented to publish a declaration that his charge that the frieze on the Rathenau villa representing decapitated monarchs was deliberately placed there to symbolize the overthrow of monarchism, was unfounded.

Mueller is being sued for libel by Mme. Emil Rathenau and it is up to her to withdraw the prosecution. The case has been adjourned until Mme. Rathenau's wishes in the matter are consulted.

What caused Mueller to withdraw the charge is that Professor Naager, architect of the house of Emil Rathenau, father of the assassinated Walter Rathenau, stated the frieze on the house is not Rathenau's invention but was borrowed from a building in Venice.

Capt. Mueller had made much of this offensive frieze, exclaiming pathetically during his trial: "How often the unsuspecting Kaiser entered this house!"

At the Zionist Convention Held at Baltimore

BY MAURICE SAMUEL

The chairman has the floor. The convention is noisy, and the delegate from New Orleans is particularly obstreperous. He is a young man with a moustache; his shrill voice breaks through the hum of the convention, once, twice, ten times; he is indefatigable. The chairman towers above the convention. He looks like an Indian warrior; the gavel is the tomahawk, and he wields it with something of a threat.

"The delegate from New Orleans will take his seat."

"But Mr. Chairman . . . ."

"Take your seat!"

"TAKE YOUR SEAT!"

The delegate from New Orleans flinches. One moment more and the tomahawk may be launched at his devoted head: he utters a last despairing shriek, "You are railroading the convention," and collapses.

From the chair: "Is it the feeling of this convention that I am railroading matters?"

"NO!" in tremendous thunder. The convention proceeds with its business. Two minutes later and the familiar voice of the delegate from New Orleans whistles above the storm.

"Mr. Chairman, Mr. Chairman!"

"What is it?"

"I only want to say that I too vote in favor of the resolution."

From the Chair, gravely: "The delegate from New Orleans is in favor of the resolution." A loud roar of sardonic joy goes up from the convention.

The hottest debate of all is on the Jewish Agency. Shall we call an immediate Congress Of World Jewry? shall we, until that is possible, coopt by negotiation the leading Jewish organizations and their leaders.

You would think that few passions could be aroused by a subject so academic. You would be wrong. Principles are involved, and eternal values are discussed. Democracy, the rule of the notables, the power of the sordid rich—they are invoked in every other sentence. Apparently there is more in this than meets the eye. It would be a betrayal of the people, argue the Congressists, to build Palestine except on the shoulders of the masses, the great Jewish masses. Call them and they will answer. They are straining at the leash to rush forward and dedicate themselves to the task. What right have you to turn over the building of Palestine to the aristocrats, the semi-assimilationists? Nonsense, answers the other side. This is a serious business proposition: we do not deny the principle of the Congress, we only deny its feasibility at this moment; and until the Congress is possible we must coopt forces, any one who is interested in building Palestine, whether he be Reform, Orthodox or Assimilationist; the terms of the Mandate call for it. We cannot delay any longer.

A list of fifteen speakers has accumulated under the eye of the harassed Chairman. Shall we limit the debate? It is finally decided. Midnight has come and gone and still opposing sides warn of dangers and shoals. Do not gamble with the future of Palestine. Who is gambling with the future of Palestine? You are. No, we are not, it is you who are doing so. Do not play into the hands of the non-Jewish Jews. Do not delude yourselves with phrases. We are just as democratic as you are. No you are not. We do not deny the principle of the Congress: we only demand that the building of Palestine go on as rapidly as possible. For years you have asked that the Jewish masses be the ones to build Palestine: to-day you suddenly retreat.

And the vote is taken at last, somewhere about one in the morning. In favor of cooption until the Congress is feasible; a thunder of approval. For the immediate Jewish World Congress; a cluster of voices. A count is called for; a far-seeing delegate who will go to Carlsbad and who will vote for cooption wants to have the backing of figures. A hundred and sixty votes for the cooption plan and the deferred Congress; ten for the immediate Congress.

And after the debate, when his word can no longer influence the debate, Weizmann takes the floor. He is a tired man; four months of intensive effort, four months of speaking and money raising, have left their mark on him. This will be his last speech to American Zionists, at least on this trip. There is deathly silence—delegates gather their last energies—it is one o'clock. He begins quietly, hesitantly. This will not be the usual speech; this is not Weizmann, the propagandist, the leader. He speaks now in his own name. He will be responsible in person before the highest instance in Zionist, in Jewish life, the world Zionist Congress, at Carlsbad, two months hence. He is now the debater, the polemist, the Weizmann of pre-Presidency days, the epigrammatist and iconoclast, the man who fought Herzl, the sharp of tongue, the merciless.

And American Zionists hear him for the first time as the debater. He is bitter, pointed, intense. "What, I am accused of autocracy—I, Chaim Weizmann, I a notable, an autocrat?" The idea tickles the convention. Is not Weizmann our own Chaim, from Pinsk—nay, not even from Pinsk, from but Mottole? How can any one from Mottole, who speaks Yiddish as he does, be a notable?

"Democracy is the last refuge of the incompetent!" The blow strikes home and the audiences rises to it. "I am a real democrat, ladies and gentleman. I will not be fooled by the handful of Russian émigrés who sit in the cafes of Berlin and play at democracy!" Again the blow tells. "That for them!" says Weizmann, with a figurative snap of his fingers. A hit, a palpable hit, as Osric exclaimed. "What? A democratic world Jewish congress and Russian Jewry not there?" No one seems to have thought of that before. "Ladies and gentlemen, I congratulate you on your decision. I shall fight on your side at Carlsbad. And I am a bonny fighter."

He is.

On the platform there is an array of our own particular notables, visitors, a galaxy of them, Schmarya Levin, with his Mephistophelian countenance, his fierce, embittered eyes; Reuben Brainin, leonine, the leader of the old guard with closed eyes, a dreaming face set in a shock of grey; Motzkin, plump, mild and innocuous; Slousch, with a perpetual air of reproach about him.

And then reports, mules of reports, leagues of them, an interminable procession, reports with figures and reports without, reports that appeal to psychology and reports that appeal to mathematics. The report of the Keren Hayesod, Neumann, "pallid and long-suffering," the Palestine Bureau, Abraham Goldberg, with an eternal air of youth; Goldberg, the sly, the clever, the Jewish National Fund, Senior Abel, the self-effacing, with a voice that reaches three rows, and leaves the rest to their own devices, and late one night, the report of Hadassah, from Henrietta Szold, the idolized, the woman in American Zionism—and the snappy report of the Ruthenberg Committee, Jacob Siegel, chillingly businesslike, the triumphant report of Judge Rosenblatt, all of the Tel-Aviv bonds sold, and he sticks his tongue out, figuratively, at those that did not buy, and the report of the Committee on Conciliation, Morris Rothenberg, calm, lawyer-like, conscious of a splendid case.

The voice of the young is heard at the convention: "Where are our young?" The president of Young Judaea, Borowsky, is there to ask, and the president of the Intercollegiate Zion Association, Rabbi Salit, backs up his accusing eye. A ferocious young journalist takes up the cudgels on their side, and accuses the Zionist organization of becoming an institution for the glorification of the nudnicks. We have been drawn into the maelstrom of practical work. It is time to bethink ourselves. Zionism has its spiritual aspect, the aspect which is of primary importance. It is false economy to neglect that aspect. The convention is impressed. It passes a resolution for the establishment of a Bureau of education and propaganda. Conventions have a habit of passing resolutions. But this convention is a serious one. Has it not raised thirty thousand dollars toward the wiping out of the deficit?

Three o'clock, daylight saving time, Wednesday morning, the convention came to an end. A handful of us, driven by cruel duties, rushed for the last train. All the way to New York the rhythmic rumble of the wheels mingled in my mind with defiant delegates, with fumbled reports which brought together, in monstrous union, the most diverse of subjects, from the snow-white whiskers of one delegate to percentage of expenses in the maintenance of an institute for nudnicks. At eight o'clock I set foot again in New York, wearied and bewildered, but still retaining, to my astonishment, a considerable degree of sanity.—The Jewish Tribune.

APPEALS FOR BOOKS FOR DETAINED IMMIGRANTS

New York, J.T.A.—An appeal for the contribution of Yiddish, Hebrew, German and Polish books for the benefit of immigrants who are detained at the hospital on Ellis Island, is made by Rabbi Jacob Bosnak, Jewish chaplain at the U.S. Marine Hospital there.

Hundreds of the immigrants are held for days and weeks in the detention rooms of the hospital and at present have nothing to occupy their minds except worry over the final decision whether they will be permitted to land in the country.

Books may be sent to care of Elias, 135 Eastern Parkway, or to Rabbi Bosnak, 1901 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, N.Y.

The "Enoch Arden" Law

A marriage which took place in Toronto, Ont., over twenty years ago figured in the first test case in New York of the law known as the "Enoch Arden law," which provides for the dissolution of marriage ties when husband or wife has not been heard from for five years continuously.

The appellate division of the Supreme Court of New York upheld the law in the case of Mrs. Florence Jane Frankish, who had entered a plea for dissolution of her marriage to Charles Harold Frankish. Frankish left her in 1917 when the couple were living in Buffalo. The lower courts had denied Mrs. Frankish's application. "This Enoch Arden law is an anomaly in the legislative history of the United States," Judge McGoldrick, of the lower court, had declared.

By Friday's decision, the Supreme Court ordered the marriage dissolved. The couple were married in Toronto in 1901. There were three children."

The Enoch Arden law is significant when compared to the law of Agunoth in the Jewish Codes. According to Jewish law, a woman whose husband has either abandoned her or, being absent, has not been heard from for some time is called an Agunoh. If she has no proof of her husband's death, or being without a bill of divorce from him, her status as his wife remains for ever unchanged and she is forbidden to remarry. Jewish law does not admit the presumption of death from a prolonged absence merely, nor can a wife obtain a divorce from an absent husband.

The intent of the Rabbinic law undoubtedly was to preserve the sanctity of the marriage vow, and to uphold the monogamous marriage relationship. Yet the law itself worked exceedingly great hardships on deserted wives. In order to mitigate the rigors arising from such cases, the Rabbinic law permitted certain modifications in regard to the strict rules of evidence—which to establish a fact legally required the testimony of two competent male witnesses. Thus, if the absent husband sent a bill of divorce to his wife, the messenger was permitted to testify that it was written and signed in his presence; and this testimony was deemed equivalent to that of two witnesses. (Talmud Gitten 2b). According to Maimonides' code another concession was made in permitting the witnesses to attest the bill of divorce, although they could neither read nor write. The bill was read to them and a tracing was made for their signatures. In case the husband died while absent from his wife, the testimony of one witness was deemed sufficient to prove death, so that the woman might not become an Agunoh, it being almost impossible in most cases to obtain two witnesses to prove death in a foreign land. In such a case even hearsay evidence, as well as the testimony of persons otherwise utterly incompetent, was received.

The Rabbis were always aware that the Jewish law made the woman the innocent victim and compelled her to waste her life away as an Agunoh.

The weight of Jewish public opinion was always so heavy that few women dared to disobey the law by remarrying and few men ventured to take such a woman to wife. In the middle ages the Rabbis did whatever they could to interpret the law so that the sharp edge was taken off it.

When immigration from Eastern Europe to the United States set in on a large scale thousands of Jewish women became Agunoth by virtue of their husbands' desertion, and their neglect to send their wives a get (bill of divorce). Especially since the war and the upheaval in the social life of Europe, countless Jewish women have been added to this category. On this continent too, with the gradual breakdown of the old standards of Jewish family life, many wives find themselves deserted for years without any trace of their husbands' whereabouts, and yet they are unable to remarry on account of the rigidity of the Jewish law. The question of family desertion is becoming acutely serious among us. The lists of every Jewish Federation of Charities are replete with cases of this sort. Yet the Rabbis in the face of these conditions are obdurate and insist on the letter of the law. They refuse to recognize that the change in conditions of life make it essential to interpret Jewish law so that it will be applicable to modern needs.

The Enoch Arden law of the State of New York may be an anomaly, yet we congratulate the State that has such a law, and hope that that law will become universal.

In the face of the Enoch Law of the State of New York, a pretty question arises for the Rabbis. Recognizing both the humaneness and justice of this law, are they going to refuse to recognize divorces granted under that statute, or are they going to be sufficiently broad-minded as to take advantage of this splendid opportunity offered them to modify the Jewish law so that it will be in conformity with the spirit which underlies the Enoch Arden law?

The Jewish law certainly did not intend to work undue hardships on innocent women. The respect and almost equality accorded in Jewish law and the attempts by the Rabbis throughout the early development of Jewish law to mitigate and soften the law of Agunoth are indications of how our authoritative teachers viewed this question.

It will be retorted by many Orthodox Rabbis that the attempts of individual Rabbis to modify the law would be of no avail because the decision of an individual Rabbi, or a few Rabbis, would not be universally recognized by world Jewry. To this we reply, why should not the Association of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada deal with the question of Agunoth in a liberal spirit and constructive fashion? Certainly a liberal interpretation of the law pertaining to deserted wives in the spirit of the Enoch Arden law, rendered by a body so authoritative and representative would be respected and would fill a long-felt popular want. In fact, a positive constructive liberal decision on so important a question of Jewish social and religious life would materially heighten the respect the Jewish masses have for their Rabbis. The Rabbis would then be regarded not as mere fossilized keepers of a body of law rapidly growing antiquated, but as living legislators ministering to the religious needs of their people.

It is regrettable indeed that our Rabbis do not seem sufficiently alive to their opportunities and responsibilities. Has Orthodoxy lost all its resiliency, and has its lifeblood run completely dry? It is a law of nature that where there is no progress, there retrogression sets in. There can be no such thing as standing still. Life is constantly moving and changing, and the law or religion which does not change with changing conditions is consigned to death. Jewish law has always been resilient and pliable. The Rabbis have always modified and interpreted the law to fit new conditions. This freedom in religious matters is what has kept Judaism alive.

Today we seem locked on the horns of a dilemma. The Orthodox Rabbis will not venture to change the law, and life is no respecter of old laws. It keeps on making demands on all of us which make it impossible to observe many of the laws of our religion. It does seem as if the wisest thing the Rabbis can do is to meet the demands of life at least half way, especially when Jewish tradition views interpretation and modification in a spirit of tolerance and liberality.

In the case of the Enoch Arden law, the law of the land ought also to become Jewish religious law.

A total of 35,000 votes were cast in New York and it is stated a total of 100,000 votes is expected from the country as a whole. While a few of the larger cities have already had their elections, in most cases they have been postponed until after the summer.

ANTI-SEMITES SUE FRIEND OF JEWS

Budapest (J.T.A.).—Court proceedings have been started against the former Minister of Justice, Count Vasczeni, one of the few outstanding liberals and friend of the Jews in the public life of Hungary. The mover of the charges is the present Minister of Justice, Gani.

The real backers of the suit are the anti-Semitic group generally, which contends that both in and out of Parliament, Vasczeni maligns them unmercifully and they allege unjustly for their anti-Semitism.

Most American daily newspapers discourage tne influx of Jewish social news during week days (except, of course, that in the form of announcements and which is paid for), on the plea that it comes in too insistently and in such abundance as not only to please the greediest editor but, indeed, to overwhelm him completely. In the old days many dailies saved up Jewish news and placed it as if by sinister accident alongside Negro news, and some still do, but things have improved to the extent that Sunday issues, being lean anyway, have open portals to news of Jewish social doings. Social discrimination of this sort is highly objected to by such Jews as insinuate themselves into Gentile golf clubs where they are for the most part not wanted, and often English-Jewish papers with little else to do, take up such cudgels as their humor or lack of it recommends. It happens that the Jewish Sentinel of Chicago carries its "social" news in ordinary type on one page and its "society" news on the next doing it proper deference with large type, bold heading and the decorative use of white space. We have neither cudgels nor stilettos on this subject and can only remark that discrimination is all right so long as we do it to each other but when the Goyim try it on us—well, as has been said cleverly before, that's a horse of a different color.

This reminds us of our local Saturday Night's latest bit of gaucherie with regard to the Jews of whom it is perpetually ignorant. Recently it carried among the list of plays to be given next year at Hart House one by Mr. Henry Borsook. We know the play meant is by him because we know he has one which will be given and because Saturday Night very illuminatingly said one on the list was written "by a young man of foreign extraction." There is no reason for such condescension unless Saturday Night actually didn't know who the young Jew was and didn't care to discover, which we doubt. So here we are heaving up cudgels and brandishing stilettos which, as Saturday Night might say, is just like a person of foreign extraction.

Speaking of the theatre, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise has declared himself in defence of the morals of "The God of Vengeance" for the production of which the Jewish owner and several actors, among them Rudolph Schildkraut, were arrested on the expert testimony of two policemen sent to see the play to see if they could understand it. Evidently they didn't if we are to trust Rabbi Wise's judgment. Next year there isn't likely to be any such public scenes as this, judging from the pronouncement of another co-religionist of ours, by name Morris Gest, the man who brought the Moscow Art Theatre to these shores and who ought to know. Mr. Gest as good as said that the annual output of twin beds and bathroom fixtures and pastel-shade pyjamas would be cut down enormously next year. In other words that is what we understand by his remark that "the day of the salacious play is over." Mr. Gest is quoted as even saying that next year will see many religious plays on the boards. This ought to re-establish Mr. Gest in the good graces of one Henry Ford, a rich mechanic over in Detroit that Collier's Magazine is trying to make president. If we remember correctly, Ford in the days when the Dearborn Independent played the role of pogrom-leader, had some things to say about this same Morris Gest and the way he was demoralizing the theatre mean enough to give the latter grounds for suit.

That last word "suit" is the link in these ramblings between Mr. Gest and Mr. Herman Bernstein, editor of the Jewish Tribune. Mr. Bernstein is lucky enough to have been one of Mr. Ford's Dearborn Independent targets. He charges Ford said that statements made by Ford against Jewish bankers had been communicated to him by Bernstein. He calls this libelous and scurrilous and Samuel Untermyer as his attorney will prove it for him. Of course, this means that, while Mr. Bernstein's fair name will be vindicated and the fame of the Tribune spread, the basis of Ford's attacks against the Jews will be taken up with an eye to proving just what manner of man Ford is and how ignorant a man the American people will have for president if they select him. This is a clever move on the part of Mr. Bernstein and we wish him godspeed, albeit with just a tinge of envy that it was not "der balabas fin Bay street" (as the local Yiddish paper calls our boss), Henry Ford tried to make a "gornisht" out of.

Zionist Activities

A successful meeting commemorating Dr. Theodor Herzl's death anniversary was held at the Talmud Torah Hall on Wednesday evening, July 4th, at 8.30 p.m. under the auspices of the Zionist Council of Winnipeg.

The committee in charge decided upon a new policy—that of holding the Memorial Meeting on the night of the Yahrzeit which fell this year on Wednesday, July 4th, instead of, as in former years, on Sunday a week or two past the date.

The musical numbers rendered by the Orphanage Band and Choir; Beth Yancov Choir under the leadership of Chazan Jacob and Mr. Brownstein, the violin solo by Mr. Lyons and the duet by the Zwet sisters was enthusiastically received and recalled several times. Rev. Kahanovitch's address was inspiring. Owing to the lengthy program and the lateness of the hour (which did not conclude until 11.30) Messrs. Osovsky, Wilder and Hestrin did not address the gathering. Mr. Osovsky, however, strikingly appealed for support in the Tree Campaign, also for volunteers as canvassers to assist in the Tree Campaign which was to start on Sunday, July 8th, and continue until Tishabov.

Haboinim Society

The Haboinim Society, which was organized several weeks ago is the only Society under this name in Canada and consists of young men and women who are very energetically working for the rebuilding of our homeland. They are the sole collectors for the Keren Hayesod outstanding pledges, assisted in the "Flower Day" held recently for the National Fund, and the distribution of National Fund Boxes and have volunteered and pledged themselves as a body to work for the Tree Campaign.

Keren Hayesod

The collection of outstanding pledges is being carried on satisfactorily. Almost all the districts are being covered by the newly organized Haboinim Society who are also endeavoring to obtain new pledges.

The Pupils of the Shaarey Zedek Sunday School have the distinct honor of being the first contributor of $100.00 for the redemption of their name in the Golden Book. They were also the first to contribute to the 1923 Keren Hayesod Campaign, having sent in a cheque for $50.00 before the Campaign was officially inaugurated. The pupils of the National Hebrew School were also amongst the first with their subscription of $100.00.

as merchandise is a misnomer. Can a printed label be compared with an axe, for instance? The label carries a parcel across the continent or around the world, telling each handler from whence to where. The axe is useful too, but only to the immediate user. Printing is direction, information and intelligence. Its appeal is to the educated mind. And do not forget that every educated mind is derived from what printing has taught it.

WITOS DEFENDS GOVERNMENT FROM ANTI-SEMITISM CHARGE

Percentage Norm Is Theory Only at Present, Premier Says

Warsaw (J.T.A.).—Premier Witos of Poland, to-day defended his administration from charges that it had been unfriendly to Jews, in an interview he granted to Jacob Landau, New York director of the J.T.A.

"The reports in a Jewish newspaper in America that I had charged the Jewish members of the Sejm with incorrect dealing toward the Government are erroneous," Witos said. "Poland is not chauvinistic and she stands firm by her constitutional guarantees of the rights of the minorities. She expects that the Jews will discharge their obligations to the government."

The Premier declared that the percentage-norm question was more theoretical than "actul" at present, adding that the measure for the limitation of Jewish students had been for the present at any rate deferred by the Sejm.

Mr. Landau also was received by the Foreign Minister, M. Seyda. The latter denied that the Polish government was anti-Semitic or chauvinistic, although, it is true, it was composed of "natural Polish elements." He declared that Poland was determined to solve the Jewish problem in accordance with Polish standards.

Poland at every opportunity has sought to extend the most liberal rights to minorities, Mr. Syeda said. "Poland has no objections to Russian emigrants passing through Poland, providing their stop-overs are for short periods," he contended.

The minister said that of late he has been pleased to note in the Jewish press of the U.S. and Canada an improvement in its attitude towards Poland.

With regard to the minority clauses in the Versailles treaty, M. Seyda said that Polish circles viewed these guarantees with displeasure because there was conveyed in them an impression of mistrust of Poland's intention to deal justly with all its inhabitants.

Good Times and Rest for Mother and Babies

Monday afternoon, June 18, the first group, consisting of eight mothers and twenty-three children, were received at the Hebrew Maternity and Mothers' and Babes' Summer Rest Home at Bronte. The cottage is newly decorated and has Miss Malca Halpern, graduate nurse, in charge.

This camp is one of the model camps in Canada. It has the praise of Mr. J. J. Kelso, Superintendent of Neglected and Dependent Children of Ontario, of the Medical Health Department, and recognition of the Toronto Daily Star Fresh Air fund.

The first group were sent home July 2, when the second group, consisting of ten mothers and nineteen children were received. The mothers and children receive the best food and attention, also health talks, instructions on child welfare and a recreational programme for each group, as follows: bathing, reading hours, musical afternoons and evenings, picnic and prizes awarded for winners of races. Concert and refreshments on the Saturday evening prior to the departure of each group, and cleanliness encouraged by awarding a prize to the mother for the best-kept room during her stay at the cottage. On departure each child receives a little souvenir and some goodies. To add to the delightful stay the groups are transported to and from the cottage by generous friends who give their cars for the purpose.

Too much cannot be said of the generosity shown by those who believe that the committee of the Mothers' and Babes' Summer Rest Home are doing splendid work and should be encouraged. Dr. Bremner, of Bronte, has offered his services gratis to the cottage for the season, also Dr. D. Fauman and Dr. D. Pearlman, of Toronto, who have offered to call at the cottage when necessary.

The camp is conducted with a nurse in charge, a housekeeper, cook and volunteer workers, who change with each group.

The third group were sent out on July 16 and there is quite a waiting list.

The committee, through Mrs. M. S. Till, chairman, wish to thank Toronto and Hamilton friends who are so kindly assisting us in our undertaking.

CONGREGATION GOEL TZEDEK, UNIVERSITY AVENUE SYNAGOG

The Friday evening services will commence at 8 p.m. through July and August. The Saturday morning services will commence at 9 a.m. Cantor Zaslowsky and his assistant Mr. Shatz will conduct the services.

New York (J.T.A.).—Temple Beth Emeth, of Brooklyn, whose spiritual leader is Rabbi Samuel J. Levinson, is conducting an intensive membership drive. The slogan of those in charge of this worthy endeavor is: "Three hundred and fifty members before the Holy Days." That Beth Emeth will reach its goal is a foregone conclusion of all who know Dr. Levinson and his ardent co-workers.

What Can You Spare?

Have you lent a helping hand to the Jewish Boys' Camp this year?

Several hundred poor kids are being entertained at camp on the Hamilton highway, right on the lake front. Some of these youngsters have never had a really good time in their lives. Fresh air and a dip in the lake before breakfast is more than entertainment to them. It is a tonic for their small, frail bodies, sorely needed and generously given, with your assistance.

At the camp a number of well-known young men of the city are voluntarily acting as mentors for the boys, holding classes and directing all sorts of games, teaching the youngsters the principles of keen competition and the joy of clean sportsmanship. All this is worth-while for the growing generation. But the camp cannot be continued without funds and funds are very low.

Will you lend a helping hand?

Send a dollar, two, five or ten—or whatever you feel you can spare—for a worthy philanthropic cause.

Please send your contribution to-day to the honorary treasurer, Mr. Edmund Scheuer, 131 Yonge street, or to Mr. Mort. Levy, chairman of the Camp Committee, 260 Yonge Street.

HERZL ZION

Last Friday evening the members of the Herzl Literary Circle had as their guest Mr. Kramer, a recent arrival from Central Europe, who graphically described conditions. Having been a resident of Europe both before and after the war, and also a resident of the United States, Mr. Kramer was able to compare the present with the past. His lecture was so vivid and well received that he was asked to speak to the members again some time early in the fall. Mr. Kramer, who is an X-ray specialist, is at present staying in the city, connected with one of the hospitals here.

The executive committee of the Circle announces that for the next meeting, Friday, July 20, a debate will be held on "Resolved that a world court will put an end to all war." As Toronto is to have soon a "No More War" parade, the subject is a timely one.

The Club picnic was held on Sunday, July 7, at Scarboro Heights Park, with about forty couples present. The baseball game was the main attraction.

BALFOUR

Last Saturday Manager Bennett led his baseball team to a 17-0 victory over an all-star aggregation. Sniderman's pitching was a feature.

Balfours also defeated the Customs' team in an exhibition game. Solway featured in the outfield. The Balfours have won the Central Judean title with five wins and no losses, and take possession of the Bennett challenge trophy.

The club's fourth annual boat trip across the lake was successful.

The Balfour's first annual picnic will be held at Queenston Heights early next month. Those who wish to take advantage of the tennis permits should get in touch with Mr. Dworkin or Mr. MacCohen.

The next regular meeting will be held August 2 at the club-rooms.

The Blue Bird Club visited the Jewish Orphanage Home, June 10, presented it with ten dollars and entertained the children. Any girl wishing to join this club must be at least fourteen to sixteen years of age. For any information, please call at the home of Miss Rachael Honickman, 44 Stephanie Street, or phone Adelaide 1250.

YOUNG JUDAEA

At a recent meeting of Young Judaea, elections were held, and the following officers elected: President, Miss Sarah Sheffer; recording secretary, Miss Eva Bloom; corresponding secretary, Miss Reba Gollom; treasurer, Mr. B. Shulman; boys' supervisor, Mr. Herman Moscowe; girls' supervisor, Miss Hannah Miskin; educational committee, Miss M. Levi, Mr. D. Cohen; athletic director, Mr. M. Papernick.

Baseball

On Thursday, July 11, the opening night of the Young Judaea Baseball League was featured by two fast games.

In the boys' section, Hasmoneans, in seven innings full of excitement, just managed to nose out a 7-6 victory over the Maccabeans. The pitching on both teams excelled. The Judas Circle had the bye.

In the girls' section, eight-baseball was also the order of the day. George Eliot girls surprised the Ruth girls when they came out on the long end of a 17-5 score. Deborah Circle had the bye.

YOUNG JUDAEA ANNUAL PICNIC

Arrangements have been practically completed for the Young Judaea annual picnic, to be held at Scarboro Heights, Sunday, July 28. Call the secretary of your Circle for complete information. Watch the Review for further announcements.

DR. HERMANN GOLLANCZ, M.A., KNIGHTED

It is with great pride that Jews in general, and Canadian Jews in particular, learn that His Majesty King George V. has conferred a knighthood on one of Israel's most illustrious sons, Professor Hermann Gollancz, in recognition of his contributions to learning.

Rabbi Prof. Dr. Hermann Gollancz, M.A., D.Litt., the new knight, is in his seventy-first year, and congratulations upon this happy event, as well as the good wishes of the whole community are his. Dr. Gollancz has just celebrated his ministerial jubilee. He is at present minister of the Bayswater Synagogue, London, which post he has held for so many years. On the contemplation of Rabbi Gollancz' retirement from this position the United Synagogue Executive Committee suggested that he be appointed Emeritus Minister of the United Synagogue.

This distinction has been conferred on Rabbi Gollancz for pure merit alone, not for party politics or wire-pulling, but for his notable contributions to the literature of our people, and to the whole world in general. Not is it only an honor for Rabbi Gollancz, but for world Jewry, who will tender their heartfelt felicitations and good wishes that the Rabbi may be spared many years to enjoy the honor that his King has deemed fit to bestow on him.

MONTREAL

Although complete returns have not yet been received, the Zionist Headquarters at Montreal have been informed of the complete success of the observances which throughout Canada marked the commemoration of the 19th anniversary of the death of Theodor Herzl. As usual, Hadassah took a keen interest in all the activities, and to the members of the various chapters must be given credit for a great part of the success of Herzl Day. Thousands of trees were sold, with the reforestation of Palestine in view.

In co-operation with the Herzl Day movement there will be collections among the children of the various Talmud Torahs and Sunday Schools on T'ish B'ov.

Peretz School

The Jewish Peretz School on Cadieux Street has completely re-organized its teaching staff and is looking forward to a record attendance next term. During the ten years of its existence, the school has made rapid progress; so much so, that to-day, the enrollment of pupils is over 300.

In addition to the regular classes in Jewish literature, Jewish history, Hebrew and Bible study, there will be a special class in singing, under Mr. Steinwortzel, the well-known tenor, who will teach the Yiddish folk-songs, and another special art class under Mr. Kronberger. The idea of an art class is not Wew, for Gershon Benjamin, the promising young artist, has conducted sketching classes at the Peretz Schule for the past few years with great success. Another feature that is worthy of mention is the organization of a high school class that will deal with post-graduate work. Mr. L. R. Rubenstein, the principal of the school, has announced that there will be a special campaign to increase the enrollment for the fall term.

The tenth anniversary of the Peretz Schule was celebrated in the month of May with a banquet at which were present, all the members past and present of the school. The guest of honor was Mr. Novack, the founder of the school who came from Philadelphia to attend the celebration.

Orphans to Have Outing

Although the children of the Hebrew Orphans' Home on Claremont Avenue have not gone away for the summer, as was the custom in other years, they have, through the kindness of friends, enjoyed many "all-day" outings into the country. It is hoped that arrangements will be made for them to spend the month of August either at a specially chosen country site or at a children's camp.

Jewish Poet's Memory Honored

Under the auspices of the Jewish People's Library, a memorial meeting was held Thursday night, in Prince Arthur Hall, in honor of the late Morris Rosenfield, the noted Jewish poet, who died recently.

An elaborate program, consisting of readings and recitations from the poet's works, was given. Among the speakers were S. Wiseman, M.A., who gave a talk on Rosenfield's works and W. K. Bernstein, who sang several popular songs by Rosenfield who had several personal friends in Montreal.

One Killed, Two Injured in Auto Accident

A most distressing accident occured on July 11, which resulted in the death of Max Adelstein, aged 27, St. Lawrence Boulevard, and in the severe injuries of Ben Joseph, aged 30, of 308 Marlowe Avenue, Notre Dame de Grace, and of Philip Joseph, aged 23, Laurier Avenue, Outremont. The accident happened when the car in which the three men were motoring to Old Orchard Beach, overturned into a ditch near Lacolle, Quebec. Dr. H. Gaudreau, of Lacolle, who was called to the scene of the accident, a spot three miles south of Lacolle on the road to Rousses Point, found that Adelstein had lived only a few minutes after the crash. He gave immediate treatment to the injured and summoned the ambulance from the Royal Victoria Hospital by long distance telephone. It is reported that Ben Joseph is suffering from a fracture of the left leg, above the knee, and that Philip Joseph sustained severe injuries to the abdomen. The hospital authorities report that they are both progressing favourably. The funeral of Max Adelstein occurred on Friday, July 13, at 11 a.m., from 471 Strathcona Avenue. The deceased is survived by his widow, née Sophia Gittleson.

The accident occured as Adelstein who was driving the automobile at a good speed, noticed a waggon ahead, going in the same direction. He sounded the horn, but the waggon did not leave the centre of the road, and he swerved. The sudden movement caused the car to overturn. The occupants were caught beneath the car. Adelstein was pinned to the back of the seat and was probably choked to death by the steering-wheel. Philip Joseph, who suffered severe abdominal injuries, is the President of Canadian Young Judaea and well known throughout Central Canada. Ben Joseph is highly esteemed in both social and business circles.

CROSSES OCEAN TO BRING ORPHANED CHILD HERE

New York (J.T.A.).—Desiring to make certain that a little girl whose mother died when the child was only an infant, would arrive safely in America to join her father, Jacques Pierrot, treasurer of the Montefiore Home for Immigrants, in Rotterdam, and one of the most prominent Dutch Jews, has arrived in New York with his little charge. Mrs. Pierrot also accompanied her husband.

Upon the death of the girl's mother, Herr Pierrot took the child in his charge and made an offer to her father who is in America to adopt the child, and give her $40,000 when she became of age. The father, who has since re-married, refused to part with the child.

Berlin (J.T.A.).—"Die Volkische" organs of the ultra-nationalistic anti-Semitic Germans repeat the oft-exploded charge that the American Jews are in conspiracy with the Freemasons.

According to one of the stories a certain Major Demlage has been receiving money from both Masonic and Jewish sources in America to aid him in this conspiracy.
